WEEK IN FINANCIAL CIRCLES

Disregarding the foreign situation, which has apparently become further complicated by the induction of the Mexican turmoil into the already seething pot, American business and commercial interests hitched their hopes to the star that may yet prove meteoric and found in the failure of the Government's case against the Steel Corporation the greatest inspiration that has on appeal.

That the Steel Corporation won a big victory is generally conceded. The unanimity with which the decision was reached and the overwhelming manner in which the Government was overruled on every point raised in the case, substantiated the stand. But already the students of the situation have come to a realization that the outposts only have been taken; 'he citadel yet remains to be stormed.

Attorney General Gregory has announced definitely that the case is to go to the Supreme Court of the United States, where the provisions and meaning of the Sherman anti-trust law have already been rather fully construed.

Both the Union Pacific in defending its combination with the Southern Pacific and the American Tobacco Company in opposing dissolution won their cases in the district courts only to be later overruled by the Supreme Court. Another district court pronounced the International Harvester Company to be a "good trust," but demanded its dissolution. a decision from which that corporation appealed to the tribunal to which the Steel case will now go. The Northern Securities Company was a Government victory in its fight against so-called trusts and established what have been regarded as the fundamentals of the legal interpretation of the Sherman law. of the legal interpretation of the Sherman law. Consequently, it is not by any means an established fact that the Steel decis-ion will stand. Satisfaction, however, is found by those inclined to the coris found by those inclined to the corporation's side of the controversy in a realization that probably a full year will elapse before the Supreme Court will review the case. Meanwhile, general business will have advanced so far on the inspiration which has been required to start the proverbial snowball down hill, that, favorable or unfavorable to the industry, the decision will not have a very material effect upon the country generally. the country generally.

Improvement in business conditions throughout the country had been progressing gradually. Men versed in the gressing gradually. Men versed in the true situation assert that such a development as this Steel decision only was necessary to reveal the fact to the general public. No more direct indication of the improvement can be found than in the reduction of business failures. Month by month the number has been decreasing.

The Atlantic coast shipyards are accredited with orders from Great Britain and other of the warring nations for merchantmen that are to replace the vessels that have fallen victim to the German undersea boats, which, it is said, will keep them busy for two years. The demands for steel—as material for rails, cars, and war munitions—are already so great that those familiar with the industry are predicting that the lapse of a few months will find all of the great rolling mills working at capacity.

The demand for copper has been steadily maintained since the outbreak of the war and the effect is now being reflected through increased dividends from the companies. ## Last Week's Winners

Classified Manager, Washington Times. Dear Sir-Last Saturday while boxing with my sparring partner, Kid Watson, of Southwest Washington, I bursted one of my gloves. Remembering an ad of last Sunday's Times, I went across the street to Maxwell's Store and purchased a new set. Although these gloves only cost a dollar, I find they are much better than the old ones, that had cost me 18.

My new purchase has proven so successful that I am now recommending all purchasers to deal with J. J. Maxwell, who sells the best sporting goods on the market at the most reasonable prices. Yours truly,
